

Stepping into Christian Louboutin's brand new villas at Vermelho Hotel

Melides | Portugal

There is no doubt the Melides made the master of shoes, Christian Louboutin, literally fall head over heels. The passion of the celebrated fashionist has recently led to a new chapter: the opening of two brand new villas in the surroundings of Vermelho, La Salvada and La Maison des Bateaux. Both are extensions of the hotel's creative universe, melting on the unparalleled beauty of the local landscapes.

La Salvada

Conceived in a collaboration with the Egyptian architect Tarek Shamma, the villa welcomes up to four guests in 250m² sunlit interiors: two independent bedrooms, custom-made furnishings and curated artworks. Each has its own private entrance, and a spacious living area bathed in natural light that brings together a lounge, dining room, and reading nook.

The décor is both vibrant and refined, striking a delicate balance: clean lines meet rich textures, bold pigments, custom-made furnishings, and carefully curated artworks. The villa's gentle rhythm continues outdoors: leisurely lunches on the terrace, slow afternoons by the water, and golden sunsets from the panoramic rooftop with sweeping 360° views.

La Maison des Bateaux

Nestled amid rice fields, La Maison des Bateaux captures the essence of a quintessential Alentejan retreat, thoughtfully designed to welcome four to six guests. Spanning 150m², the villa was built with whitewashed walls, airy volumes, and raw natural materials enhanced by delicate, refined details that celebrate the artisanal spirit of the region, all subtly infused with Christian Louboutin's singular creative vision.

The interiors flow in a serene palette of luminous whites, calming blues, sun-warmed terracotta, and soft touches of red. Three elegant bedrooms, one easily transformed into a peaceful relaxation space, complement a fully equipped kitchen, three bathrooms, and a spacious living room designed for laid-back moments. Outdoors, time seems to stretch. A shaded porch, perfect for long afternoons, opens to a private pool with tranquil views across the landscapes.
